

Mr. Speaker, every country in the world knows that America is the strongest nation in the world, particularly when it comes to defense. We have billions of dollars in weapons to prove it, but sometimes situations call for more than just brute strength.

Let us not look back in another 4 years and wish we had done things differently. It is time America got smart about its national security.

I urge all my colleagues to cosponsor this vitally important resolution, H. Con. Res. 392. Let us be smart about our future. SMART security is tough, pragmatic and patriotic, and it will keep America safe.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. JONES of North Carolina addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BROWN of Ohio addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to speak out of turn.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

ADMINISTRATION WILL HAVE TO ACCOUNT TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDERMOTT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, this is the administration that lays claim to security. They have got it under control. They have got it covered. They know, so Americans should trust them and reward them with another 4 years.

Well, it sure does not look that way. It took an independent, bipartisan panel to uncover 3 years later the fact that many of the 9/11 terrorists had crossed Iran's border with the knowledge and approval of the Iranian Government.

Why did the administration not know this? They made claims about their leadership in the war on terror. The administration's word rings hollow in the light of the 9/11 Commission's revelations.

When it comes to the war on terror, this revelation demonstrates this administration does not know what it does not know, but they claim to be the leaders and they claim it now. Clearly, they do not. Three years after 9/11 occurred there is no excuse for them having to find out from the 9/11 Commission.

The 9/11 Commission, with nothing close to the resources the administration has at its disposal, was able to uncover that many of the hijackers passed through Iran. Why did the administration not know this?

What else do they not know? Why have 3 years gone by without an investigation into Iran? Why is that? What does this revelation mean about Iran? We do not know and neither does this administration.

How could this happen? Very simply. The administration's obsession with Iraq. It is that simple. The administration diverted attention, resources and global support away from Afghanistan and the hunt for Osama bin Laden. This administration launched a war in Iraq on thinner evidence than what has been discovered about Iran and al Qaeda.

The President talked tough today. Is he signaling the start of another pre-war campaign? That was the pattern in Iraq. Start the rhetoric out in the open and plan behind the closed doors.

Is that what is going on here? Considering the overwhelming U.S. military commitment in Iraq, the truth is, the United States has limited, if any, real ability to launch another significant military action while 160,000 troops remain in Iraq.

What does that mean? It means we are overextended for one thing. It means that diversion into Iraq diverted the war on terror. It means the President's decision to invade Iraq deprived us of the right to investigate Iran. We have lost invaluable time, measured in years, when this administration beat a drum beat that turned war rhetoric with Iraq into reality.

The 9/11 Commission has given us a glimpse of what we do not know. The rhetoric only goes so far. In the aftermath of the truth about Iraq, the administration's rhetoric is long on words but very short on credibility. That is not leading a war on terror.

Today, America strains under the weight and the consequences of a misguided war that substituted rhetoric for evidence. Today, America sees firsthand the consequences of a war that diverted us away from the real fight we have. Today, America is beginning to see what was overlooked, left behind or simply ignored in the administration's rush to judgment against Iraq.

Three years later, the consequences of the administration policy makes clear the real intelligence failure began not in the CIA but in the White House. Intelligence failure was not in the agencies. It was at the top, from the people who directed them. It should never have happened, and this administration will have to account with the America people in 105 days.

We cannot afford an administration that wastes 3 years on the investigation of a country with nuclear power and other issues.

(Ms. SCHAKOWSKY addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

PROBLEMS THAT OHIO FACES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 7, 2003, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STRICKLAND) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. STRICKLAND. Mr. Speaker, I thank the Speaker for his recognition, and I am happy to be joined this evening by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN) and the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES), and later we will be joined by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN). We are going to be talking this evening about the Nation, but especially about some of the problems that are faced by those of us who live in the State of Ohio.

Mr. Speaker, Ohio's theme has been "Ohio, The Heart of It All." It is true that Ohio is the heartland of our Nation. Ohio probably more than any other State is a microcosm of this great Nation. We have the Great Lakes to the north, the majestic Ohio River along the eastern and southern boundaries. We have some of the richest, most productive farmland in the world. We have great cities: Akron, Toledo, Youngstown, Cincinnati, Columbus. They are wonderful metropolitan areas. We have small towns. And many of those small towns are in my district. Certainly Youngstown and Steubenville, Marietta, Portsmouth, Lisbon, Ohio, all wonderful towns. And we have a great diversity of population. We have great ethnic and racial diversity. We have religious diversity. We have high tech and some of the greatest universities that exist in this country.

Although the American people are hurting tonight economically and otherwise, the people of Ohio are especially hurting. In the month of June, Ohio lost 14,100 jobs, bringing the total number of jobs lost since President Bush came to office, the number of jobs lost in Ohio, to 231,500 jobs. In June, Ohio lost 3,400 manufacturing jobs, bringing the total number of manufacturing jobs lost under President Bush to 173,300 jobs. That is only 200 jobs behind those jobs lost in Texas, and third in the entire Nation.

The number of unemployed persons in Ohio grew by 111,121 since President Bush took office in 2001, rising to a total number of 3,338,831 persons unemployed last month. That is in Ohio. Nationwide, job creation is still anemic with only about 110,000 jobs created nationally in the last month.

The middle class in America is being squeezed. Senator JOHN KERRY has been talking about this middle-class squeeze. Over 90 percent of the new jobs created since August 2003 are service-sector jobs that pay an hourly wage of less than the national wage average. About 1.4 million of the jobs created are service-sector jobs with an average wage of $15.24 an hour, which is 41 cents less than the national average. And 203,000 of these jobs are temporary in nature, providing no stability to the people and the families who depend upon them. Approximately 370,000 of these jobs were in low-paying domestic industries such as wait staff in restaurants and bars and retail workers.

In addition to this, and most Americans know this, wages are at a record low. Over the last year, the average hourly wage has fallen. When adjusted for inflation, wages are now at the lowest point in 2 years, and the typical American family is making $1,500 less per year under President Bush.

The portion of the national economy going to wages is lower than it has been since 1966. In contrast, after-tax corporate profits are the highest since the government began keeping track in 1947. So the wages of America's workers are declining and the income of the corporate giants are increasing.

Now as we approach a month-long recess, instead of this Congress taking steps to help the American working family, Congress is spending its last remaining days debating what is likely to be an unconstitutional effort to block gay marriage and a bill to further extend tax cuts to those who are already wealthy. No wonder that this Congress has come to be known as the "do-nothing Congress." Instead of taking up bills which focus on issues which are really important to the average American, congressional leaders are focusing on issues which are important to their very narrow political constituency. The priorities of this Congress do not reflect the priorities of the American people.

Tonight, my colleagues, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN), and I will be talking about some of these issues to inform the American people and to try to alert our colleagues to what is really happening in this country.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES).

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. The gentleman talks about an area in his district which is near and dear to my heart. My grandfather lived in Portsmouth, Ohio, and raised nine children in Portsmouth, and I still have cousins and relatives there.

Mr. STRICKLAND. Mr. Speaker, every time I mention a town in Ohio, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) has relatives there. I do know the gentlewoman's relatives in Portsmouth, Ohio, and they are delightful folk, and I am so pleased the gentlewoman is joining us today, and it is wonderful to have her as a colleague because I do feel like we come from the same part of the country.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I also recognize the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. RYAN) from the Youngstown area. He has come to Congress, and he has not missed a beat; and I am so proud and pleased he is doing such a wonderful job.

Tonight I am going to focus on gas prices because gas prices have significantly affected Ohioans. I rise to express my disdain that gasoline prices have increased dramatically, exceeding $2 per gallon, and reached record levels in May 2004. Although recent decisions by OPEC are expected to have some impact on gas prices, the Energy Information Administration has indicated that gasoline price levels are still expected to remain high by historical standards.

These high gasoline prices have significant impacts on family budgets and on the economy as a whole. We were talking about the middle-class squeeze; I am going to talk about middle-class and lower-class squeeze. Who can expect that they are going to have to pay $2 a gallon for gas? Last night in Cleveland at a gas station right around the corner from my house, a guy walked up to the window and said $40 worth of gas.

Increased expenditures for gasoline reduce families' discretionary income and can result in inflation in the price of consumer goods. On May 17, 2004, the Federal Reserve Chairman, Alan Greenspan, indicated that the dramatic increase in oil and gas prices is "an economic event that can significantly affect the long-term path of the U.S. economy."

A recent report by the staff of the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives found that increased cost of gasoline prices can force motorists in Ohio to pay $483 million more for gasoline in the summer driving season than they did last summer. The increased cost will be approximately $62 million in the Cleveland area alone. For the average family in Ohio, the increasing gasoline prices can increase fuel costs by $125 between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

In recent months, gasoline prices have increased rapidly in Ohio and in the Columbus area. On July 6, 2004, the average price for a gallon of gasoline in Ohio was $1.81. Compared to 1 year ago, that represents a 35-cent-per-gallon increase.

Prices have increased by a similar amount in metro areas throughout the State. On July 6, 2004, average gasoline prices were $1.82 in the Cleveland area, an increase of 32 cents a gallon compared to prices 1 year ago. In 2004, drivers in Ohio will purchase approximately 5.5 billion gallons of gasoline, an estimated 460 million gallons per month. Assuming that the prices remain at the statewide average of 35
